The cows of Perigueux, France, which serve not only as milk-givers, but as draft animals, are highly prized by their peasant owners. To save them from the annoyance of flies which infest this sec-tion of France, they are furnished with quaint hand-crocheted veils which cover the entire head and hang down almost to the ground. The veils themselves are works of art with long silky fringes of vary-ing hues, or borders of crocheted lace. The Junior Red Cross of Amerca teaches the children of this dis-rict to make the veils.
